

Well, here we are in October, which is on the threshold of the Holiday Season. For starters, we have Halloween! But for some of us we have "Falktoberfest"!!! Our Chiropractor has a special party for his patients and the local community each year on the side street in front of his office. He has a wonderful free lunch catered by The Trestle, a popular restaurant in Conway, along with live entertainment, plus raffle tickets and door prizes to support the community. This year he was supporting Habitat for Humanity, which was set up with an information table and representatives.

As for chiropractic services, I don't think you will find any better service anywhere else. Dr Falk and Dr Robert Stinson, his chiropractic partner, working together to serve the community. Dr Falk has a very supportive staff, which includes his mother, Ina Falk to help run the office. The whole family is known and active in the community, which includes his wife, Kristi Falk, who is the founder and Executive Director of The Diabetes Wellness Counsel. I usually say something in my newsletter about the "Falktoberfest" each year, but this year I decided to do a little more as Dr Falk & his team is special to us and to many others we know. Thank You!!

In the picture on the left, Dr Falk is talking with a lady from Habitat. In the picture above, there is an inflatable slide for children and information tables for people to browse. The picture above is where we purchase tickets to support Habitat. Both last year and this year I won at least one prize each year. Many restaurants, shops and services in the area contributed by offering prizes at "Falktoberfest".

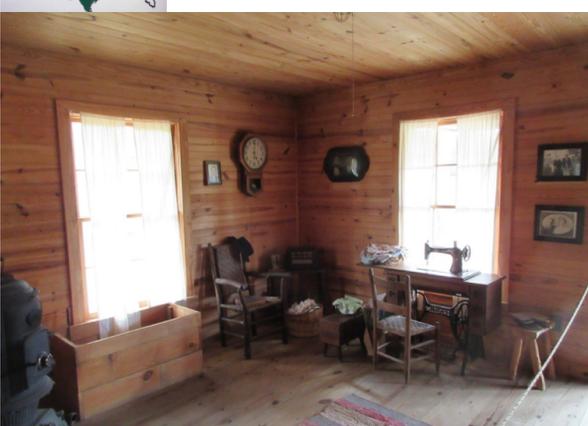

The top picture is the entrance to the Chiropractic office. The next picture below is actually one I took last year with Susan Wilson giving Bob a 10 minute massage. She is fantastic. The picture directly above is the table where we ate our delicious lunch from "The Trestle." With Halloween right around the corner, Bob & I took some pictures while driving around Conway.

In the two pictures at the top, you can see the trees lining the main street in Conway, with fake pumpkins hanging from the trees, reminding us what season we are in. I thought that was a great idea. Something different. I took the picture above with the leaves on the window at "The Trestle" having lunch. In case you are wondering, yes, the picture right above is a completed gig saw puzzle of the National Parks within the US, that Bob and I put together. I bought it from LLBean. It kept us at home & out of trouble! It is a 500 piece puzzle, & not as easy!

Those of you who read our News Letter regularly know we visit the Horry County often. They have programs at the Museum on Wednesdays and frequently have something special on Saturdays at the Museum or at the Farm. The L.W. Paul Living History Farm was built to demonstrate what farm living was like from 1900-1955. Needless to say it is a working farm with demonstrations going on all the time. The above pictures were taken October 23rd when there was a program on growing sweet and cooking sweet potatoes. If you become a member of the Museum, they have special events for members only. For example there may be someone giving a presentation on a Saturday in the Auditorium. Often that person comes early and has a lunch with Museum Staff and members may receive an invitation to join them and get to meet the speaker. You can get a good deal more information when you look on line, with a listing of all the events coming up, and other information. The museum itself is very interesting and staff will periodically change their displays, as there is not enough room to put everything out. Check it out!

Considering the current concerns about personal contact, the auditorium is large and seats are marked to space people out, plus there usually isn't more than 50 people in attendance. Face masks are required. No fees.
