

Happy Saint Patrick's Day!!

How is everyone doing? Hopefully, very well! Lets continue to pray for Gods guidance!

This is going to be a light hearted Newsletter. I didn't have a lot of time to do research for the newsletter, so I came up with this to make you laugh!

Apparently, Blue Birds have a bit of a reputation for pecking on house windows. Back in 2018, a blue bird ran into the screen door on our back porch. I was afraid it broke its neck or wing, but it didn't. I went out and picked it up. It gradually started to become functional again. When I put it on the grass, it flew off. Sometime after that, a bird started to tap on our upper windows. It pecks on the upper bedroom window and the living room windows. This continues to this day. No need for an alarm clock! It also clings to the lower window screen, leaving holes in the screen.

Notice Gracie's' reaction to the commotion! Only kidding! She just does not like bright lighting when she sleeps. The 'pecking' gets her attention though. The picture of the bird above shows bird in flight, pecking at the window.

It really gets us up in the morning!

(Being that it is "March" too bad the bird isn't GREEN)

In the lower corner is my first Lily Plant. I only wish it would bloom longer, but it's great for Easter!

"Happy Easter, Everyone!"
