

Surprise!! Something different this month. If you haven't been to this Museum, you should make a point of going. The Museum itself has history of it's own. It was the original school in the City of Conway. The attached building on the right is the auditorium, where there are weekly films, or speakers on local history, plus other events the public can attend at no charge. For a small fee, you can become a member which will enable you to attend special events for members only. Bob & I attend as members which is one of the few things we feel comfortable doing, even during the present pandemic. Everyone respects distancing and wears masks. You can check out the Museum on line.

The event in this newsletter is on making wreaths from vines collected at the grape vineyards on "the farm", also part of the Museum. Hillary Winburn, in the picture below, was our instructor. She hand picked the vines on the "Farm".

We had a small group, which was probably good, as we needed the space. The event was held at the Farm, in a room off the store. We had a good time and of course, kept our wreaths! Bob & I are in the photos just above.
